

Cómo hacen las recicladoras y recicladores para evitar la contaminación marina por desechos

Extraemos materiales orgánicos de vertederos sin recubrimiento, lo que evita que las toxinas se filtren hacia las aguas subterráneas y los ambientes oceánicos.

Brindamos un servicio de recolección de residuos de bajo costo, que los gobiernos pueden pagar, para que las comunidades más pobres también puedan acceder a este servicio, lo que ayuda a evitar el vertido informal de desechos.

Brindamos servicios de recolección que evitan la quema de residuos a cielo abierto, lo que puede contaminar los océanos.

Recolectamos de los hogares, de los negocios o de la calle materiales para su reciclaje y reutilización y evitamos así que contaminen el medio ambiente.

4

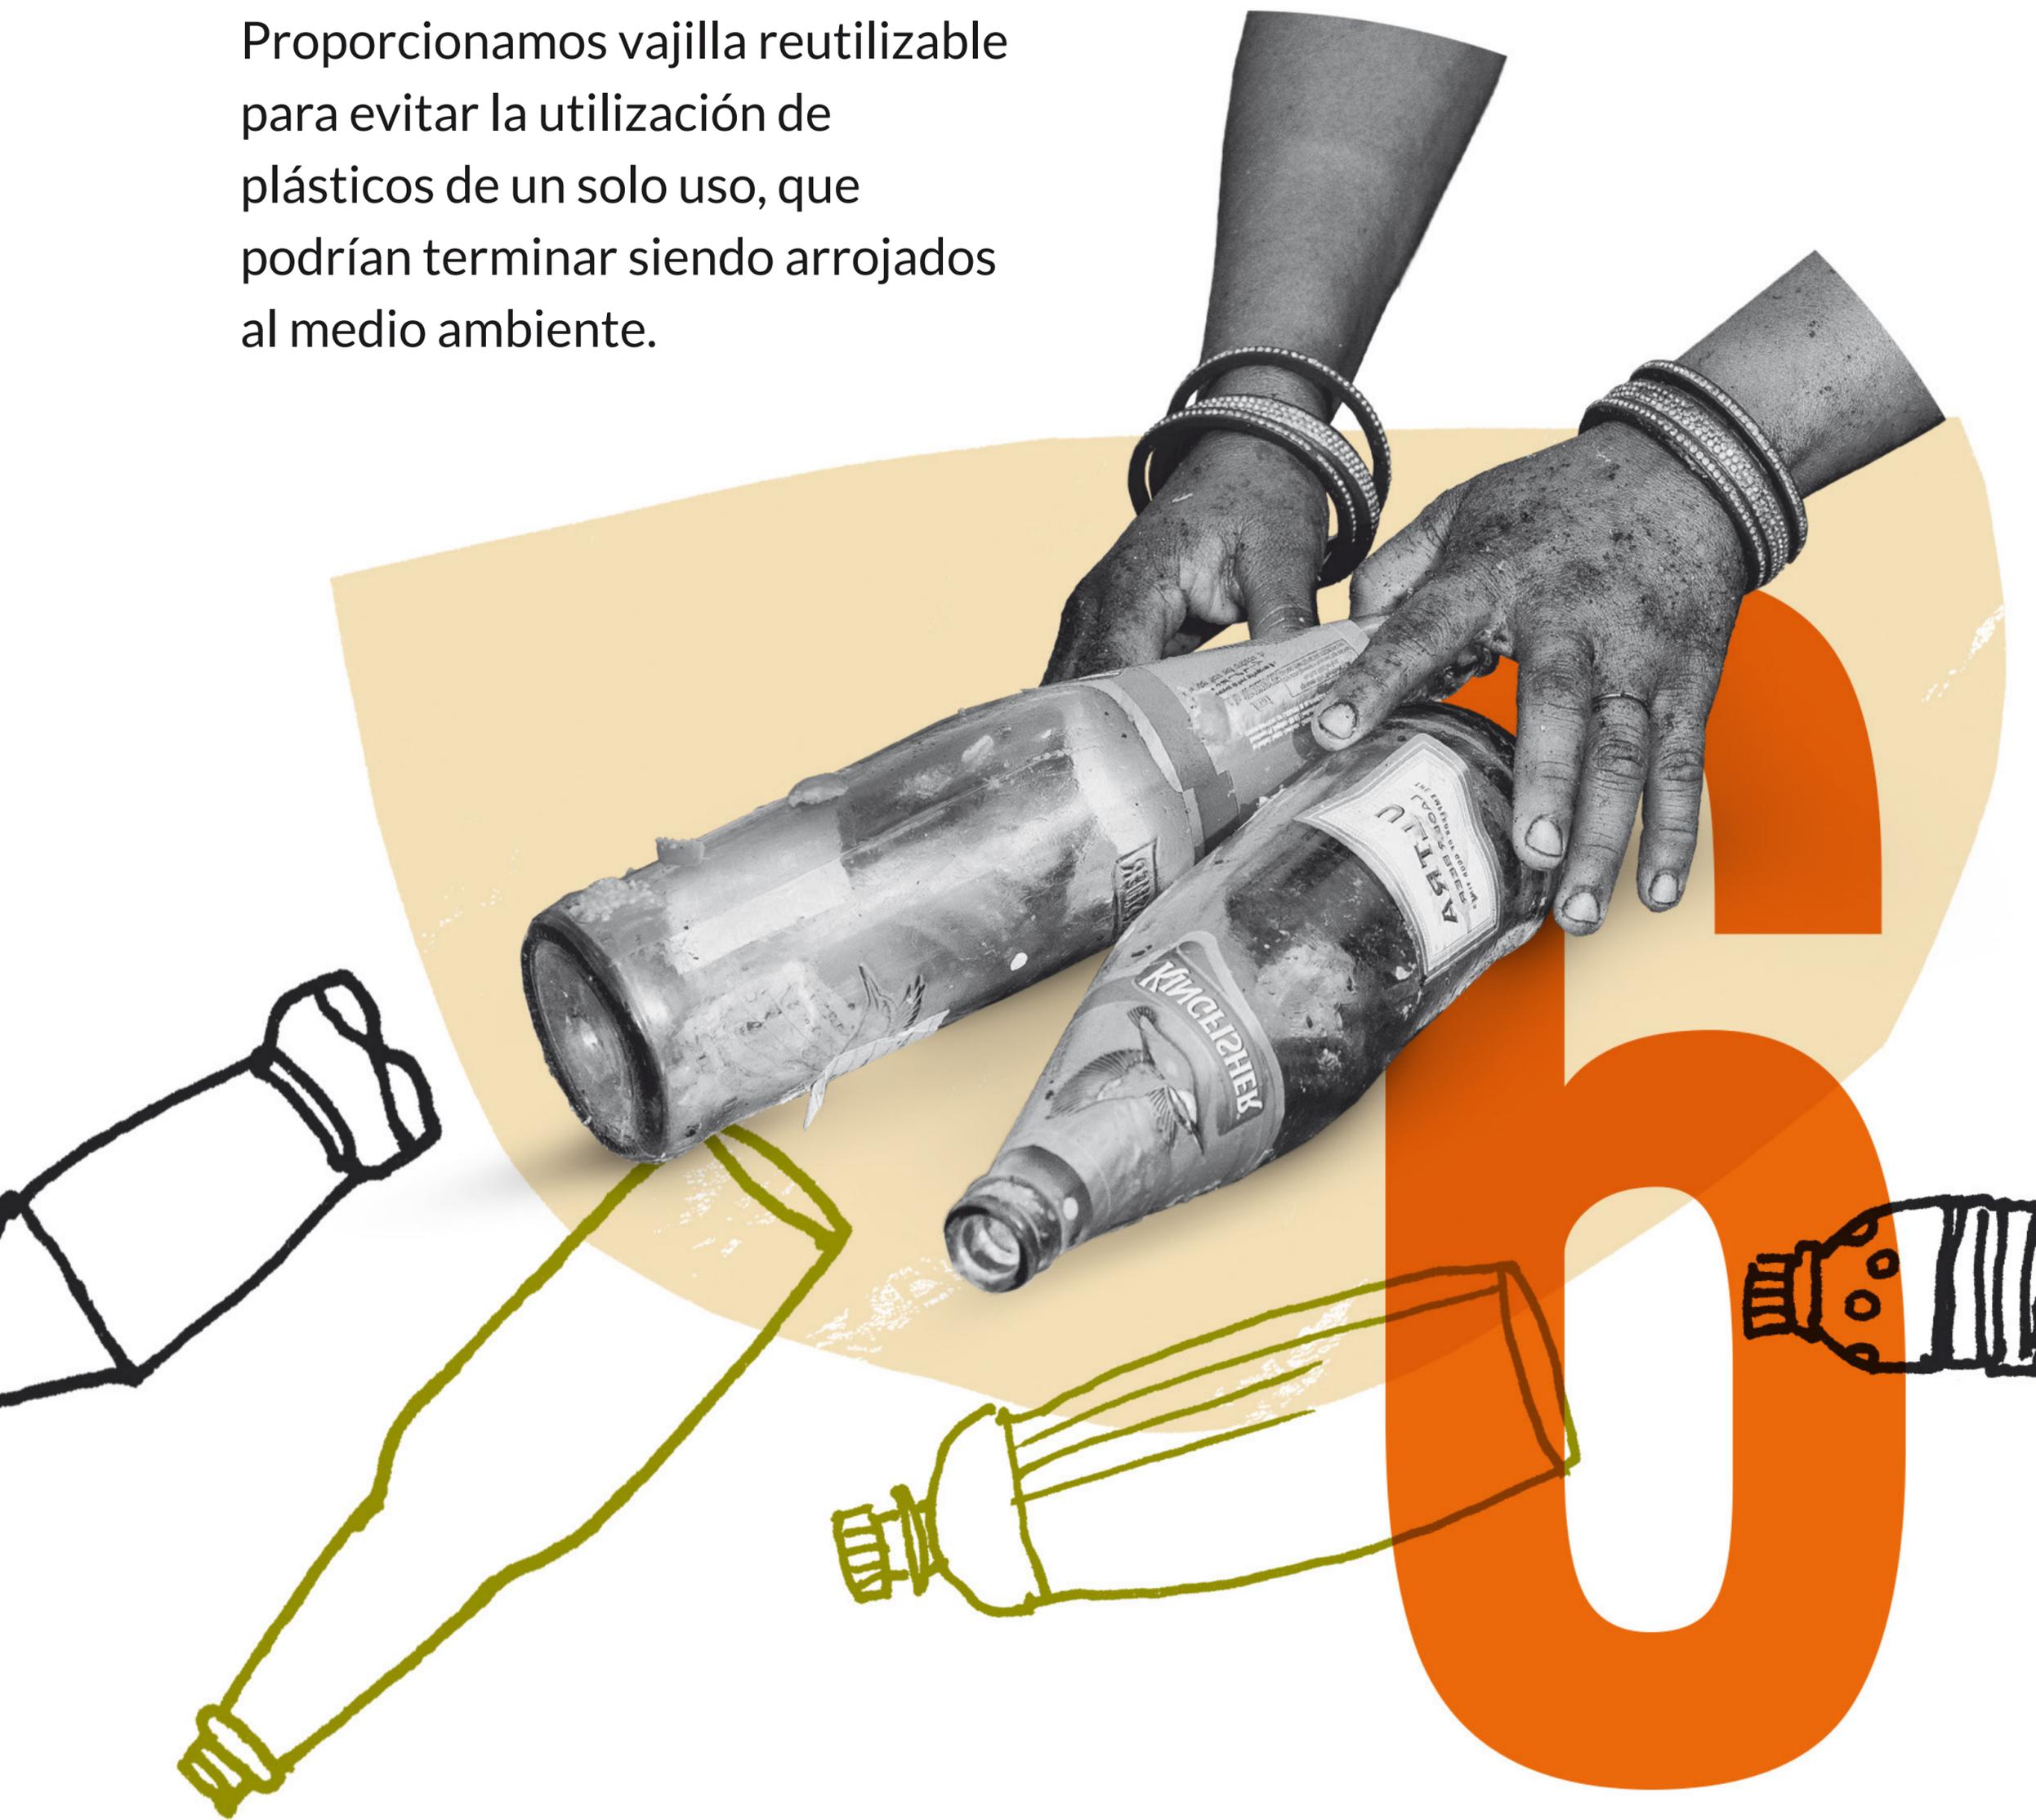

Al reciclar y reutilizar, evitamos la necesidad de generar nuevos materiales (materias primas vírgenes) que pueden destruir el medio ambiente.

Proporcionamos vajilla reutilizable para evitar la utilización de plásticos de un solo uso, que podrían terminar siendo arrojados al medio ambiente.

Abogamos por nuevas políticas para alentar la participación de todas y todos en el reciclaje, la reutilización y la reducción de desechos.

Nos reunimos cara a cara con las y los residentes y trabajamos conjuntamente para abogar por mejores prácticas de gestión de residuos y comunicar nuevas iniciativas, como la prohibición de plástico de un solo uso, etc.

8

9

Clasificamos y procesamos el material reciclable a nivel local para evitar la contaminación cuando se lo envía al extranjero (donde quizás termine en los océanos).

10

Estamos ayudándonos mutuamente a través de la organización y el aprendizaje de nuevas habilidades para que podamos crear una mejor gestión de residuos no reciclables.
